

The diagram illustrates a building floor plan. A central vertical corridor runs through the middle. To the left of this corridor, there are two rows of three rectangular rooms each. To the right, there is a single long rectangular room. At the bottom of the plan, there is a large rectangular area with a central horizontal corridor and several smaller rectangular rooms on either side.

